Huge Tarantula On Exhibition

A tarantula, one of the largest ever seen by local residents, is on exhibition in the window of C. Roy Hetzel's drug store. The big spider is in a large jar and has attracted considerable attention.
The tarantula, which is more poisonous than a rattlesnake, jumped from a bunch of bananas on to a local produce man, named Rimondio. He brushed the deadly spider from him and trapped it in a cracker box. It is still alive.

Two weeks ago another of the species was seen crawling down the leg of a transfer man named Sullivan while he was hauling bananas for Ira D. Younkin. He captured the tarantula and took it to his home, later killing it.
The bite of the tarantula is considered worse than that of a rattlesnake. There is no antidote considered effective for its bite. Victims go to sleep and never awaken. Natives, it is said, use music to keep awake when they suffer a bite and keep up a continual hammering for three or four days, by which time danger is generally past.

Bandits Get $50,000 From Paymaster and Armed Guard of Five

By Associated Press.
HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 5.—The county prosecutor's office was notified that six armed bandits had held up the paymaster of the Barrett Manufacturing company at Shadyside about 11 o'clock today and escaped with a payroll of $40,000 to $50,000.
The paymaster, accompanied by an armed guard of five men, was traveling in an automobile when the hold-up occurred.
The bandits slowed up the car by throwing stones at it. Then they leaped from bushes and quickly overpowered the guards. Their next step was to cut all the wiring on the company's automobile and to roll it into a ditch. Then taking a payroll they leaped into a large black touring car and disappeared in the direction of Newark. The bandit car was reported to be carrying New Jersey license No. 10-179.
The Barrett company, employing several thousand men, has its plant in the Shadyside section of Elkwater. The paymaster and his guards had motored to an out of town bank for the weekly payroll and were returning to the factory when they were held up. Several detectives have been assigned to the case.

Unless Three-Quarters of Billion Is Lopped Off Deficit Must Be Faced.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—To realize their expressed hope of reducing the nation's tax bill by half a billion dollars, Republican leaders of the House appear, on the basis of Treasury estimates, to be faced with the task of cutting three-quarters of a billion dollars from estimated government expenditures for this fiscal year or else a huge federal deficit next July 1.
Secretary Mellon, in a statement to the committee dealing with tax revision, has warned that even if more than $250,000,000 should be lopped off the estimated expenditures, the tax yield could not safely be permitted to fall below $1,570,000,000, the estimated return under the existing law.
In a statement published today, however, Representative Mondell, Wyoming, Republican leader, declared that in his judgment it is entirely practical to reduce the levy by $500,000,000 and still take care of the essential needs of the government.

SCOTSDALE FIRE FIGHTERS SHINE AT JOHNSTOWN

Capital Award of $300 in Truck Race Goes to Mill Town Company.

BAND WINS IN CONTEST

Second Honors in Truck Race Also Won by Mill Town Unit; Volunteers From Sister Borough March 125 Strong in New White Duck Uniforms

Special to The Courier.
JOHNSTOWN, Aug. 5.—Scottdale topped three prizes in events of the "big day" of the annual convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association here Thursday.
The motor truck of the Brownstown Hose company, Scottdale, driven by William Brennen, won the first prize of $300 in the race against time, covering the specified distance in 48-2/5 seconds. Company No. 3 of the Mill Town, driven by Charles Carroll, came in second and was awarded the second prize. The time was 55 seconds.
The Grand Army band, under the leadership of J. Frank Hardy, which accompanied a delegation of 300 on a special train, was awarded the prize in the band contest last evening.

Scottdale also stood first in the number of firemen in line. There were 125 of the uniformed fighters, led by the Grand Army band of 65 players. These prizes, however, were enough to award to Scottdale. Arrived in pretty white duck outfits and marching in perfect order the Scottdale department presented a remarkable appearance. Following the marchers were three trucks, one of which was regarded as the finest in the procession.

The Scottdale delegation came to Johnstown on a special train, leaving there at 7 A. M. They arrived here shortly before noon, almost 300 strong. After spending a grand and glorious day, with something new every minute, and the return of the special, leaving here at 11:15 last night.

The Scottdale band gave two concerts yesterday, one at the Y. M. C. A. shortly after its arrival in the city and last night in Main street. Last night's program was directed by more than 100 people.

Last night 300 visiting women were tendered a banquet in the Schwartz cafeteria, where they were the guests of Max Schwartz, manager of the establishment, and of the Schwartz sisters. Following the banquet was a delegates' ball and card party at the Moose temple.

The New Haven Hose company of Connellsville was second in the line of march. This company, consisting of 30 men and a chemical and hose truck, headed by the banner of the organization and the American flag, presented a fine appearance and drew forth much comment from spectators. The first aid team, attired in neat white uniforms, and bearing a stretcher, was one of the outstanding features of the parade. The team plans to give an exhibition before the end of the celebration here.

The South Connellsville company had 13 men and a truck in the procession, headed by the flag and the company banner.

More than 30,000 people witnessed the grand parade of the firemen. It was one of the most wonderful pageants ever given in Johnstown, and probably the best in the history of the volunteer organization.

After two days of mud, rain and cloudy weather, yesterday was clear, the glory of the August 4th being matched only by the brilliance of some of the company uniforms.

William Kelly of the Connellsville camp received a severe laceration of a finger when it was caught in an electric fan at the camp yesterday. He was attended by the first aid team.

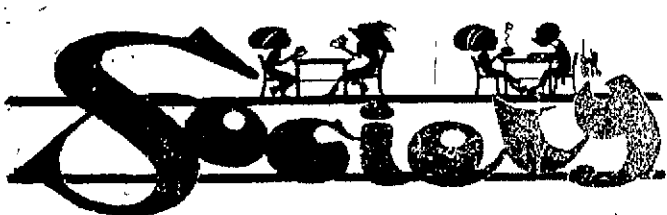

No decision has been reached regarding a place for next year's convention. Potters' association was the only place to put in a bid, and the matter was left for the decision of the board of control.

West Carthage, N. Habitually use it after a child's bath, it heals and prevents soreness and chafes."—Mabel Miller, R. N., W. Carthage, N. Y.

FRIDAY EVENING, AUG. 5, 1921.

TIME TO WADE IN.

Philadelphia Ledger.

President Harding has a program for the restoration of confidence on American farms and in American financial circles. He has a plan for the revival of trade and manufacturing.

He believes the time has come when Congress should forget its fears and quit dodging. As good a partisan as ever lived, he wants Congress to forget about partisanship and pay more attention to the state of the Nation. He has no right to call upon the Democrats to forget partisanship, but as the leader of Republicans he has such right and he is preparing to exercise it.

The President is asking no more of Congress than he has asked of himself. He asked that the Bonus Bill be deferred and this took a high order of political courage. With the railroads showing reactionary tendencies and slipping backward in public opinion, he had the courage to demand relief. In the face of a growing feeling that the farmers are asking too much, that they seek to become a privileged class, he insists that the farms must have help.

There is a lot of pessimism in Washington. Congress is worse than tainted with it. Members know what ought to be done, but they are afraid to say so and afraid to vote for the necessary measures. They are fearful of the demagogue, afraid of criticism and alarmed for fear they may lose their seats. Congressmen are acutely aware that the elections of 1922 are only a little more than a year away.

The President has much faith in his party and in the Nation. He believes that the hour has struck to push the fighting and to breathe some courage into the congressional coward. Doubtless the White House view is that there must be some rough sailing for the party in 1922, but things will be all serene again by 1924.

Inaction is not helping matters. The way the President and his advisers look at it, they will be damned if they do but they will be triply damned if they don't. Therefore, they are setting their teeth and preparing to wade in.

FOR A SUMMER WHITE HOUSE.

Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

The suggestion that Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, be bought by the government as a country home for the President will be popularly approved, we believe. Several times in the recent past movements have been begun for acquiring this historic estate and making of it a national shrine. But nothing came of them, chiefly because the owner was in position to decline to sell unless he could impose conditions which seemed to him appropriate. Now, however, he wants to sell, the cost of upkeep having grown beyond his means. He has spent upon it, in restoring the house and bringing back to the estate most of the acreage that originally belonged to Jefferson, about $1,000,000. He will let it go for half a million, if the purchaser be the government, or others who are deemed able and worthy to become owners of such a shrine. If the estate is to be preserved, not only the government should acquire it, but whether or not it should be taken as a rural White House may be debatable.

The country ought to provide a retreat for the President—a place in which he could find temporary relief from the endless round of demands upon him in Washington. Could he find at historic Monticello? Should the government acquire the estate it must necessarily become a show place, doubly attractive to the public and the more curious when the President was there. It would be impossible to afford him the privacy to which he is entitled at a national shrine. The people would claim their right to visit it, and they could not be denied. No more dignified use could be made of the historic place. But we incline to the belief that if Congress consents to its purchase Monticello should be maintained as a show place and shine on account of its past associations. As a summer home for the President, with a privacy and rest he could not find elsewhere, it would be a smaller place would be more practical.

John D. Dietz.

John Knapp, 87, months old, died this morning of summer complaint at the family home at Juniata. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Holy Trinity church, followed by interment in the church cemetery.

Greatest Power Center in the World

In seeking new industries the chamber of commerce of Pittsburgh now is making a drive to have manufacturers consider the advantages of locations in the counties in Southwestern Pennsylvania and in the West Virginia Panhandle, known as the Greater Pittsburgh district. The attraction that this district holds for manufacturers has been enhanced greatly by development of its electric power facilities.

In a clever two-color letter folder sponsored by the trade and industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce, attention is called to the fact that the Pittsburgh district is the greatest fuel and power center in the world, producing as it does 80 per cent of the bituminous coal mined in Pennsylvania and 90 per cent of the coke manufactured in this state, and will shortly have developed, the folder states, nearly 1,500,000 electric horsepower. A composite map shows the network of transmission lines of the West Penn Power company and the Duquesne Light company, contained in the folder, indicates careful planning of power development, designed to care for the future industrial requirements of this great manufacturing district. The folder is embellished with views of the Connelville, Windor and Springdale plants of the West Penn Power company, and the Colfax plant of the Duquesne Light company as it will appear when completed, together with typical scenes in the coal mining industry.

Men prominent in the electric industry are quoted by way of emphasizing the importance of Pittsburgh's power plant. A. H. McIntire, editor of the Electric Journal, points out that "in 1921 the greatest central station development has been in the Pittsburgh district, where two super-power plants, each designed for an ultimate generating capacity of 300,000 kilowatts, are being placed in regular service, with accompanying extensive increases in transmission lines and sub-stations."

"Each of these new power plants," says Mr. McIntire, "is located on a river affording sufficient condensing water for a 300,000 kilowatt installation. In addition, they are examples of the most up-to-date types of station, each is located near large coal fields controlled by the power companies."

"Today the factory location may be determined by available transportation facilities, electrical supply and proximity of raw products and markets for the finished product," says the folder, quoting from A. M. Lynn, president of the West Penn Power company. "The great problems heretofore attendant upon the production of power have been eliminated and the manufacturing plant, which had to consider fuel and water supply, and ash disposal in picking its location, may now be moved to the heart of the city or to the site in the open country best adapted for the construction of the factory and homes of the workers."

C. M. Gadsby, vice-president of the West Penn Power company, calls attention to the fact that the West Penn and electric companies affiliated with it have a territory of approximately 15,000 square miles lying in the counties of Butler, Clarion, Armstrong, Washington, Fayette, Allegheny, Washington and Greene in Pennsylvania, and the counties of Hancock and Brooke in West Virginia, and that with the exception of Allegheny and the northern half of Clarion county, the chartered territory comprises all or the greater part of each of the counties enumerated. This, he says, Mr. Gadsby, may all be called the Greater Pittsburgh district.

G. S. Cook, general manager of the Duquesne Light company, points out that the big feed system of itself is an actual demonstration of the super-power idea and that it is only a question of time until still further interconnections will be made. In a letter to manufacturers, R. J. Seaman, manager of the trade and industrial bureau, cites that "Pittsburgh is the source of the principal raw materials used in manufacturing of steel and iron products, and is the ideal location for diversified manufacturing."

The chamber of commerce invites inquiries from industries whose expansion program calls for new or branch plant locations, and offers to make a careful survey of the manufacturing problems of each with the idea of developing the benefits to be derived from a Pittsburgh district location.

TENTATION.

"I am not sure of myself," said he, as we sat at a table in a restaurant. "Life covers me with a net of temptation. In the way of many another, and I cannot say that I shouldn't sin and risk my soul for a dream to win."

"What do you mean?" I asked of him. "Oh, I mean just this," he told me: "A desperate fight and a little grim, I wonder could honor hold me. Were my babies crying for food today, I think I'd get it for them some way."

"It is easy enough to be straight and true. When a man has no need to cater, but things can happen to me and you. Which all of our creeds would utter, and I can imagine myself so tried that I should thrust myself and truth aside."

"So at no man living I'll raise my hand in anger or hate to strike him. Till I know the facts and I understand."

"That I shouldn't be just like him. How was he tempted and what the need which led him to commit the deed?"

"I would be honest and always fair. But sometimes the test is bitter. And maybe the brother that's fallen there."

"For Heaven shall be judged the difference: the thing to do for another sake.
That's who never such choice must make."

GETTING POSTED

By MORRIS

HIS WORK.

There isn't much fame on a farm, an' the farm doesn't pile up the wealth. It gives you an appetite early an' late, an' it's usually fairly with health. The world travels by in the cars, but the men and the women don't see an' help to create. Any reason to cheer anything that I do or do not do, I'm doing my work just the same an' at night time the Lord an' I know. That the what's lookin' out in the corner out there, and I—well, I helped it to grow.

Sometimes I get gloomy an' blue an' wish I could die with the great. An' wish I could point something out which my hands have builded or helped to create. Then the orchard looks over to me an' the fruit-trees seem to say, "If it were not for you an' the corn, 'twould be barren today." An' the acres of corn over there, I planted 'em all, row by row. "The good gift of nature," the poet declares—but the Lord knows I helped it to grow.

I reckon I'm fit at my place, though I wouldn't all day on the soil. An' standin' the best of the thorough an' an' list as a glorious toll. There's little of brilliance here, an' there's nothin' to brag of, I guess. A farmer's a farmer, an' that's all to it—an' his crops are his only success.

But the Lord knows, an' I know it, too, as I plough or I harvest or hug. That these fields would be barren if I hadn't helped 'em to grow.

DEMAND FOR SHEETS INCREASES THIRD TO HALF IN THREE WEEKS

Total Volume of Steel Business Small,
However; General Tone of Market Better.

Special to The Weekly Courier.
NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The American
Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel
Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:

Demand upon the steel mills has continued to increase in the past week, the turn having occurred about the middle of July. The total volume of business is still very small, smaller than could have been conceivably possible prior to a very few months ago. Demand for sheets has increased by between one-third and one-half in the past three weeks, but it still represents only about one-third the production capacity. Several other steel products have shown definite improvement, but not as great a percentage increase as sheets.

On account of the heavy line, including plates, shapes and rails, showing decidedly an improvement, the increase in the production of steel in general due to the improvement in demand is very small and the production of steel this week may not be much if any above 20 per cent of the steel production capacity.

The general tone of the steel market is much better. Buyers show much enthusiasm. They may not have much confidence in the maintenance of present prices for steel products, but they show much confidence in being able to do a little business at least. They are ordering and specifying freely, chiefly in railroad lots, and almost invariably for the quickest shipment that can be compassed. Steel prices are probably going to sag some more, but at such a slow rate that buyers who get quick deliveries and liquidate promptly do not have their profits seriously menaced.

There is active work in repaying box cars against the grain movement that will be heavy in a couple months, but little work on locomotives, which are in better condition than cars, or on track.

There is strenuous competition for business in finished steel products, but sellers are depending more upon salesmanship than upon price cutting, and while the steel market is neither stationary nor advancing it is sagging rather than definitely declining. Most of the products are likely to have accidents of a dollar a ton from time to time.

GAS MASKS

Needed to Protect Men and Mules
Employed About Mexican Oil Wells.
Gases impregnated with sulphur which have been discharged at the Mexican oil wells have caused the deaths of both men and mules. An effort is now being made to prevent casualties among the human workers by having them wear masks stronger than those worn in the armies during the European war, and not unlike helmets.

Committees Named For Grange Outing Dawson Fair Grounds

Arrangements are being made for the annual combined picnic of Fayette county Grangers to be held August 27, at the Dawson Fair Grounds. This year it is planned to make the outing the biggest in history and for that purpose everyone in Fayette county, whether Granger or not, is cordially invited.

Recently the fair grounds have been improved by the owners and it is claimed that this is now the most beautiful picnic spot in the county. The new road to Dawson is just open and it is thought that this will entice many motor parties to the picnic.

Organization for pushing the event has been started at a meeting at the home of M. E. Townsend at Plattwoods who has been chosen president of the picnic committee. He will have as vice-president William N. Gaskill of Grifordston. Jesse O. Strickler of Smock will act as secretary and J. P. Hazen as treasurer.

It is being planned to make the picnic one of the most elaborate ever held here and the organization has appointed a committee for every conceivable part in arranging the outing. The committees follow:
Speakers—F. F. Hutchinson, Dawson; S. S. Stallenberger, Dawson; and George M. Strickler, Vanderbilt.
Music—W. D. Dixon, Dawson; J. P. Hazen, Smock; and E. C. Duff, Smock.

"DEVOTION," the feature attraction today and tomorrow, presents Hanne Darrow, the popular player who was a star upon the stage before her advent in motion pictures, in the stellar role. "Devotion" is a story that analyzes that most divine of human emotions—love—not the all-consuming fires of passion, but the calm patient renunciation that endures through adversity and burns brightly through eternity. It is a tale of three women. One, who married for love, her sister who married for wealth and position alone, and another woman who through force of circumstance was placed in a terrible position. The woman who married for wealth and position found everything she wanted except happiness. Her sister who married for love found happiness, although for a time it was alloyed with the shadows of mistrust and suspicion. The other woman suffered and endured the very depths of sorrow to the very limit of human endurance until she achieved the reward of devotion. How the lives of the three seekers of happiness were twisted by Fate until the skin was untraveled is shown in a series of scenes and situations that runs the entire scale of human emotions.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE WILLOW," a western drama featuring Harry Carey, is the leading attraction today and will also be shown tomorrow. The vigorous modern western drama is enhanced by a play within a play. The hero goes into a small nickelodeon and there on the screen sees a wild and fiery western drama just as it was made in the Bronx in 1910. Carey is shown in the darkened movie theatre watching the screen. The west as it is depicted by a haxen-haired floor walker gets on his nerve. He walks out and steps into a series of adventures in real life which would have been far too rough for the smirking hero of the antique celluloid drama. A furious gun fight, a battle for the girl, political intrigue, wild rides over the desert and a desperate feud between the citizens of a modern western town.

"Meaning, I suppose, that she has now found all the faults he has?"

SASH FOR SUMMER

Decorative Is Popular in All Kinds of Fabrics.

Some Are Wide; Some Are Narrow; Thin and Heavy Materials Serve to Adorn Frocks.

The sash of the waistline is descending rapidly, but the sash is still with us. It grows in favor and develops in grace as time goes on. It has about it a most feminine characteristic, and it adds to whatever gown it adorns to adorn.

As one looks about at the social summer gatherings one is impressed with the fact that the sash in one guise or another does play a most important part in all the modern dress. It is the position of the sash, or belt, and the way it is tied and the angle at which it is posed that mean everything to the general tone and smartness of the dress of which it is a part.

There are sashes that are wide and sashes that are stiff; those that drape gracefully away into nothing at all, and those that are heavy and fixed and cumbersome except for the clever way in which they are handled; those that are made of thin stuffs and those that are fashioned from the heaviest of brocades; those that are mere strings of beads and those that are embroidered with beads and stitches over their entire surfaces; those with ends that trail away past the heels of the skirts and those that end in a trifling bow with no ends whatever; those made of glinghams and those made of lace. No contrast, no striking use of formerly selected materials can stand in the way of a sash making itself successful. This season sashes are made from everything under heaven, and it is a happy day for the woman, for one can, by this means, gain a becoming line without a great deal of fuss and trouble. Sashes for summer frocks are perhaps the most important of all, for it is the dress which has survived all rivals this season. There is something about the perkiness of a sash, which inevitably takes the cure of a summer affair that might otherwise be but a composite stringy mass of wrinkles.

MOURNING AS WORN IN PARIS

Lighter Weight of Material and Shorter Period Is the Tendency in France.

For several months a tendency has been noted in France to wear lighter mourning than formerly, and while many women are not only cutting short the duration of it, they frequently adopt for deep mourning materials which formerly would have been completely discarded. The long crepe veil, at one time so generally in use, is seldom worn in front except for the day of the funeral service.

The present fashion has largely done away with the blouse, keeping only the frocks, which naturally follow the general line of the season. Materials at present used for the first period of the mourning are wool, serge, gabardine, and even velvet, de luxe and duvetyn trimmed with English crepe. For the second period, the same materials are combined with crepe georgette, and for the last period of mourning mousseline and crepe georgette are much used, unadorned with dull beads. For this period, afternoon dresses may be made of crepe, tulle, or crepe de chine, each with a very modest decoration, and short sleeves. A particular detail to be noted is that the décolletage are adorned with white to make dull black a little more flattering.

Coats are either in cape form or with sleeves set in, and frequently have a collar of English crepe. According to the strict rules of mourning, fur should not be worn, yet black fur and broadtail are now admitted and considered as correct mourning furs.

As to hats, the small band of smooth crepe or English crepe, formerly considered as the sign of widow mourning, is worn today for all kinds of deep mourning, even on the day of the funeral.

SHAWL AS AN EVENING WRAP

Spanish Garment Must Be of Soft Silk and Have Long and Graceful Fringe.

The Spanish shawl as an evening wrap requires no description of "making." A graceful woman wraps the shawl about her lovely figure, declares that it is an admirable evening wrap, and to it is loaned as a brand-new style.

The shawl must be of some soft silk of course, and have a long, graceful fringe, and it may be gorgeously embroidered if desired. The heavy silk crepe shawl is a thing of beauty; most of the shawls sold as evening wraps are of a crepe weave. Naturally, a Spanish note must be sounded in the accessories worn with the shawl to be really successful in

ARE MORE THAN MERE SHOES

Gone are the days when the plain black or tan shoe sufficed for dress occasions, for milady of fashion now demands a shoe as distinctive and attractive as her capriciously designed gown. The above unusual design comprised a feature of a recent fashion show in London, where they were made.

the graceful shawl and a high Spanish comb for the hair is all important. Heavy bracelets are also quite in keeping.

Evening shoes or pumps feature the high tongue so much in vogue now, but instead of having it match the fabric of the pump it is a stiffly up-standing full of lace.

The fan, too, is interesting. It is of black lace beautifully spangled with a deep vivid blue.

LACES PREDICTED FOR FALL

Embellishment Promises to Be Fashionable for Use on Blouses as Cool Days Come.

The blouses now found in the show rooms of the smarter shops are principally made of georgette, with the exception of some types of mignonette. The bellot is expressed, however, that laces of many sorts will be fashionable for blouses in the fall.

Some newer models of the sport suits are exceptionally attractive. The combining of homespun in overall with duvetyn is particularly effective in a suit where the plaid skirt is developed in homespun of a brilliant shade of red, with an overplaid in black and white. A silk duvetyn coat is faced with the homespun of the skirt. The same model is made of Havard blue plaid homespun, combined with black duvetyn. While box coats are shown, they are invariably accompanied by narrow huckle or tie belts. Sport jumpers are entirely garish as to cut and are shown in long and three-quarter models.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Talk of eggs are "well beaten" when thick, light and lemon-colored.

A bit of thyme added to the filling for a fowl will give a good flavor. An electric iron outfit in the sewing room is a great convenience.

Even a spoonful of cereal is worth saving to thicken soup, gravy or sauce.

After washing the sink, sprinkle a little chloride of lime down the drain pipe.

The best-shaped utensil for deep fat-frying is a cast aluminum kettle with an oval bottom.

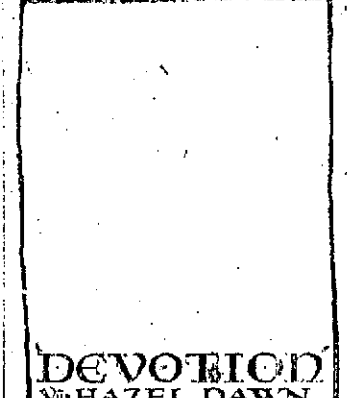

Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff and dry and add to two cupsful of plain marmalade. This makes a deliciously fluffy dressing.

Butter made from pasteurized cream or milk should be given to children in their sixth year. Before that age, letters and fruit butters are much better for them.

A fruit salad may be served with cheese balls in place of the customary dessert. The bread sticks may be split open, buttered and laid on the edge of the salad plate.

MINES AND MINING EXPOSITION WILL ATTRACT INTEREST

Particularly Among Latin American Countries and In Russia.

CAPITAL AND MACHINERY

From America Will Be Needed to Develop Vast Mineral Resources Which Will Furnish the Chief Reserve Supply for the Whole Industrial World.

The National Exposition of Mines and Mining Equipment which is to be held in Chicago, under the auspices of the American Mining Congress, will be international in its character.

Irrespective of its desire and wishes the United States has become a factor of vital importance in all international arrangements. By virtue of its productive capacity and its ability to create equipment machinery necessary for all large economic development, this country is being looked to more and more as a source of such equipment by foreign countries and also as a place for the securing of investment capital for the development of industrial enterprises.

This is particularly true of the mining interests. Take South America for instance: All of the great countries in South America are rich in mineral resources, many of them have as yet only scratched the surface of their natural wealth. In many instances these great mineral resources will furnish the chief reserve supply for industry throughout the world in many forms of different basic raw materials.

As a result, the national exposition which will bring together in Chicago approximately 250 exhibits representative of the latest forms of mining equipment machinery made in the United States, is attracting great attention among Latin American countries and these countries will be represented in Chicago with official delegations, who will come to the exposition for the purpose of studying American methods and American equipment in order to utilize these methods and this equipment in the development of their own mineral properties. In fact, this exposition will have all of the attributes of a great international exposition. Not only will the South American countries be represented here with official delegations but Mexico, a land rich with mineral resources of all kinds, will be officially represented with a large and splendid exhibit illustrative of its natural wealth. No question is of more interest to American mining men at the present time than the future of Mexico. Millions of dollars of American capital was invested in Mexico in the days of Diaz and there are unlimited opportunities for future mineral development as soon as a policy has been adopted which will enable close cooperation between Mexican and American interests.

The exhibit of Mexico at the exposition will attract much attention and it is hoped that as a result of the conference and discussion at the convention of the American Mining Congress, the mining interests of the United States will endeavor to agree upon definite resolutions in regard to a policy toward Mexico. It is the feeling of many of the western mining states that President Obregon has shown constructive ability in handling the domestic problems in Mexico and that his government should be recognized by the United States as a first step towards bringing about the possibility of American mining interests working effectively in Mexico.

In addition to these interests there also will be representative delegations from European countries and the important Russian committees in Paris have taken a great interest in this exposition in the belief that when Russia becomes somewhat more stabilized there will be a remarkable field for the development of mineral production and that American capital and American equipment will be essential factors in the rapid reconstruction of Russia.

It is believed that this joint-meeting in Chicago will result in a formulation of plans which will have a far-reaching effect upon the future development of American mining interests both at home and abroad.

Export and Lake Shipments Decline; New England Gain

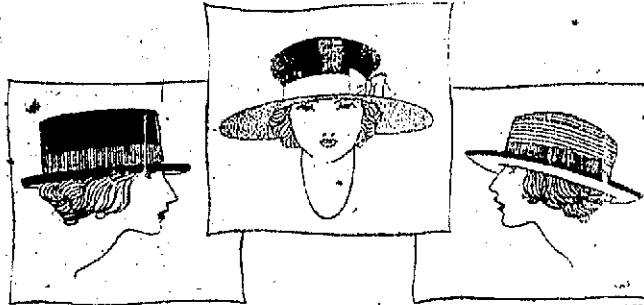

A steady decline continues in the Lake movement. The quantity of bituminous coal dumped into vessels at Lake Erie ports during the week ended Sunday, July 24, was 768,426 tons, against 815,705 tons the week before, and 1,140,121 in the week of July 3.

Following the settlement of the British coal strike, the overseas export business has been rapidly declining. Exports from Hampton Roads—the chief Atlantic coal port—were only 179,832 net tons in the week ended July 23, a decrease of 63,718 tons from the preceding week, and barely one-third of the record set in the week of July 2. Foreign bunker coal amounting to 82,991 tons brought the coal-dumpings for foreign account up to 262,823 net tons.

For both anthracite and bituminous coal an increase in the movement over the Hudson to New England and Eastern New York was reported. Cars of anthracite forwarded numbered 3,160 and cars of bituminous coal, 3,018.

Cumulative shipments since June 23 of new stand at $8,828 cars, an increase of six per cent over the 84,274 cars forwarded during the corresponding period of 1919, but a decrease of 15,619 cars when compared with 1920.

British Coal Strike Brought Nation Near Abyss of Bolshevism

Nothing but loss results from interrupting the orderly processes of production and distribution or interfering with the law of supply and demand, says the Mining Congress Journal in a wholesome editorial issued by the recent British coal strike, the principal results of which are:

Government emergency expenditures totalling $100,000,000.

Maintenance for several weeks after the strike of a defense force costing $250,000 every day.

Seventy million working days lost.

Loss in production of $2,000,000 tons of coal, serious damage to England's export trade, general industrial depression, destruction of many mines.

A grant of $50,000,000 subsidy to the mine workmen.

Standard minimum wages fixed at twenty per cent above the 1914 level.

Standard profit of the mine operators to be limited to 17 per cent of the aggregate amount of wages paid, and of the surplus profit above that point 17 per cent to go to the owners and 83 per cent to the union.

The only showing of gain made by either side is seen in the clause granting increased wages and sharing of profit to the mine workmen. But 20 per cent over the 1914 wage level is not a great increase, and it is doubtful if there will be any profits to share.

The British coal mine operators' annual output has decreased from 246 tons in 1913 to 134 tons in 1920, or 25 per cent. His latest wage increase will enable him to become nearly 25 per cent less efficient and still draw the same amount of wages which he received between 1913 and 1920, and from his past conduct it is reasonable to infer that that is exactly what he will do.

Coal is the foundation of Great Britain's business structure. The surrender to the mine workmen was made to save off national chaos. But the terms of capitulation were such as Lenin or Trotsky might have written, and they carried Great Britain nearer to the abyss of bolshevism than any nation except Russia has yet approached. Another strike, another similar "victory" for the strikers, and Great Britain will be over the brink and into the abyss.

Found Out.

"Would you like to hear a secret involving Mrs. Needles in a scandalous scandal?"
"Goodness, yes. Tell it to me."
"I don't know any such secret. But must say you have a very mean disposition."

Opportunity Lost.

"Why did you jump?" asked the model.
"Great Caesar's ghost!" exclaimed the pedestrian. "To keep you from running over me."
"Dread the luck! I missed a chance to test my new emergency brake."

GRADUAL DECLINE IN BOTH BEEHIVE COKE AND COAL CONTINUES

Former Shows Decrease of 5,000 Tons; Latter 34,000 Tons During the Week Ending July 23.

Production of beehive coke in the United States fell off again during the third week of July, says the weekly report of the United States Geological Survey, compiled by F. G. Tryon statistician. From reports of coke handled by the 25 principal coke-planting roads, which load on the average 96 per cent of the entire output, the production during the week ended July 23 is estimated at 33,000 net tons. This was a decrease of 5,000 tons when compared with the week preceding. According to The Courier the output in the Connellsville region was 21,320 tons against 21,480 tons in the week of July 16.

Production by states, compared with the corresponding week of 1920, was as follows:

	1921	1920
Pennsylvania and Ohio	28,000	29,000
West Virginia	2,000	27,000
Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia	3,000	28,000
Virginia and Kentucky	4,000	23,000
Colorado, Oklahoma and New Mexico	2,000	5,000
Washington and Utah	2,000	8,000
U. S. Total	39,000	38,000

No break in the gradual decline in soft coal production occurred during the week ended July 23. The total output, including lignite and coal coked, is estimated at 7,300,000 net tons, a decrease of 34,000 tons from the revised figure for the preceding week. Coincident with the decline in output and doubtless the largest elements in it were a decrease in both the Lake and overseas export movements.

Production during the first 172 working days of the past five years, the period over which records of weekly output extend, has been as follows:

	1917	1918	1919	1920	1921
Production	305,583,000	333,122,000	333,122,000	296,000,000	280,000,000
Exports	10,000,000	10,000,000	10,000,000	10,000,000	10,000,000
Production	295,583,000	323,122,000	323,122,000	286,000,000	270,000,000

THE STYLES

Having had this August sale of the finest furs nature produces in anticipation for months we have gathered together the best the market offers, and whatever the model the purchaser may be sure it is in advance of the season. The indications are that a greater number of furs will be worn during the coming fall and winter season.

Hudson Seal, Natural Squirrel, Beaver, Muskrat, Marmot and French Coney, rich, soft and lustrous, will probably be the leading choice of many. Wraps and coats are roomy and richly lined with embroidered satins and silks.
